- Give up selfish ambitions, and by God's grace, give yourself totally to the service of God, the camp and the campers each and every minute
- Be with your campers – all the time. Each week, you will have two (some weeks more) 30-minute sessions where you are not responsible for your campers. During that time, you may talk on your cell phone, check email, or take a nap. The other 23.5 hours per day, you are responsible for your campers
- Have cabin devotions each evening
- Spend individual time with each camper sometime throughout the week to determine his or her spiritual condition (One-on-Ones)
- Counsel campers of the same gender as needed after each session

- Participate in the staff choir (singing ability is not required, only a desire to glorify God)
- Look for opportunities to talk to parents before or after the closing sessions
- Be available to help with any task or chore that you may be asked to do which will include cleaning your cabin, helping in the kitchen on weekends, and various other work projects
- Participate in skit time
- Carry and be responsible for inhalers during junior weeks
- Make sure campers are dressed appropriately for the next activity
- Never complain about the rules, staff, program, or any other aspect of the camp ministry - constructive criticism is welcome during staff meetings
- Abide by all camp policies
- Attempt to practice and apply Ephesians 6:6 - “Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart.”

After:

- Provide suggestions and constructive criticism during the after-camp evaluation time
- Be available for occasional questions about situations that happened at camp
- As time permits, follow up with the campers that God lays upon your heart. Many times the follow-up of a counselor after camp makes a dynamic impact upon the life of a camper
